Findex

让 Agent 基因融入公司。

When one fact in an order changes, Findex tells every affected role what it means for them, with evidence, and hands the owner a decision brief instead of a group-chat avalanche.

CANNOT SIZE

The payment, or its timing

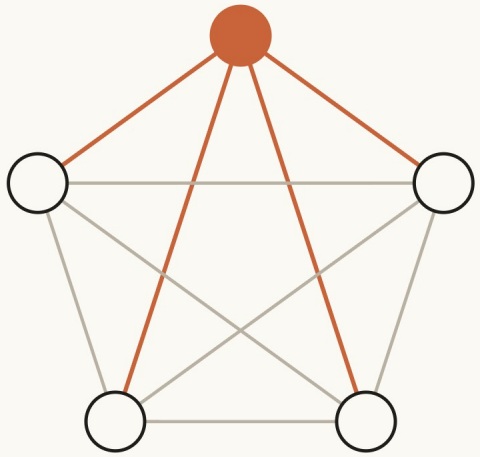

One short shipment. Each team acts on what it last heard, and the owner has to piece it together.

Lines are subtitles from the opening of our film (0:00–0:16).

Today, every change travels person to person.

Illustration

When nothing holds the shared facts, every pair of people has to stay in sync by hand.

between 5 people

GROWING COMPANY

190

lines to keep in sync

between 20 people

One change, such as a shipment 30% short, has to be relayed along these lines. Findex replaces them with one shared fact (p.06).

Lines between n people = n(n−1)/2. Arithmetic, not survey data.

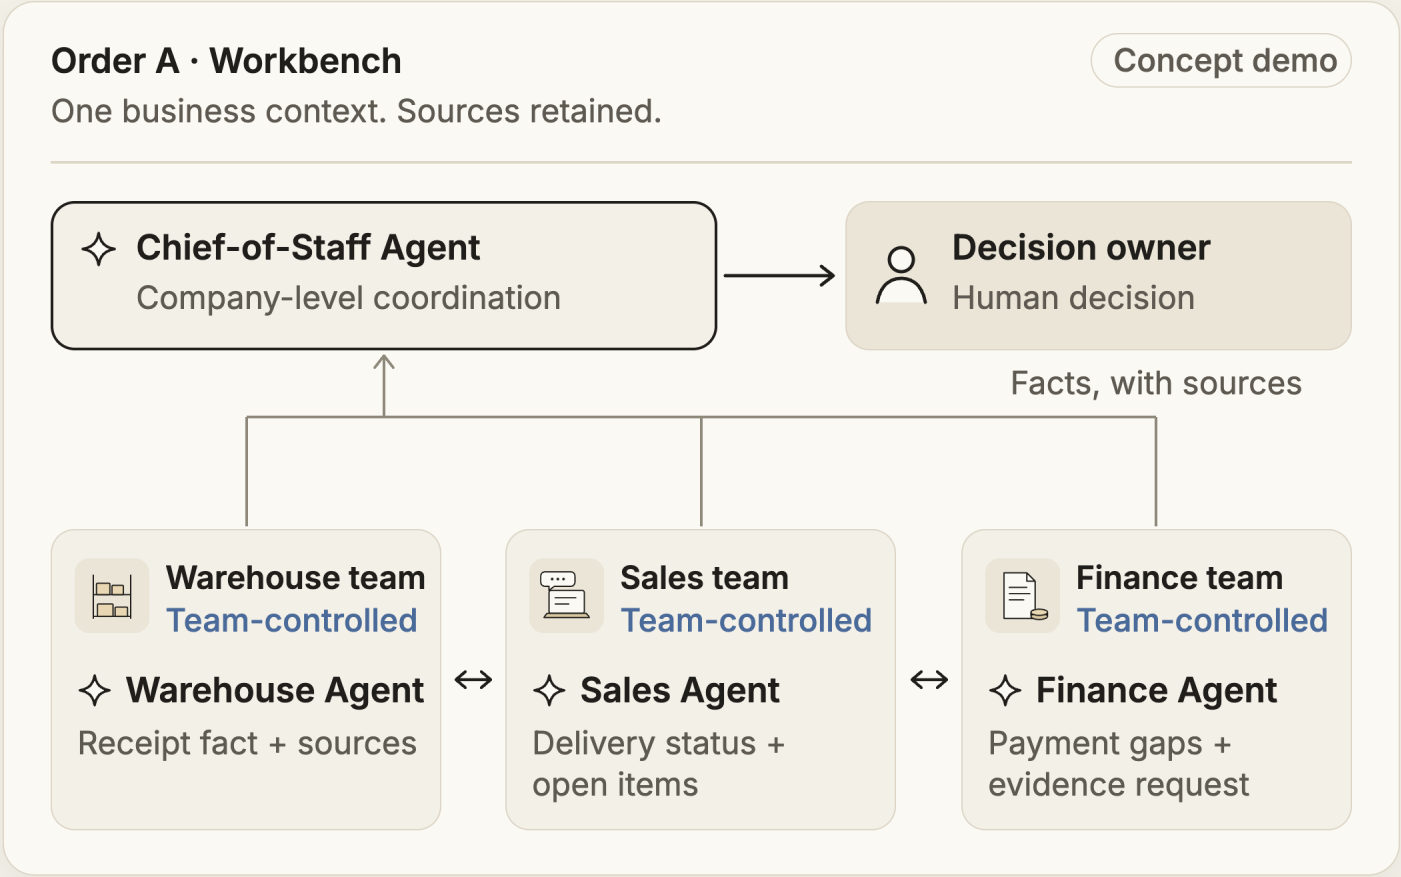

What we know, and what we still have to prove

A workbench where every team runs its own agent

01 Each team controls its own agent

People on that team confirm what it does.

02 Agents exchange facts, with sources

Not everything goes through the owner first.

03 The Chief-of-Staff Agent briefs the owner

It brings judgments together. A person decides.

One fact reaches Sales and Finance at the same time

Each team's agent prepares. A person on that team confirms. Nothing is sent or paid automatically.

One brief. The owner decides. The decision flows back.

BACK TO THE TEAMS

Sales team
↳ Complete delivery evidence

Finance team
↳ Follow up payment evidence

Agents prepare. People with authority decide.

Each team stays in control.

A change recalculates exactly what it touches.

In a spreadsheet, change one cell and its dependents recalculate. In a company, nothing does.

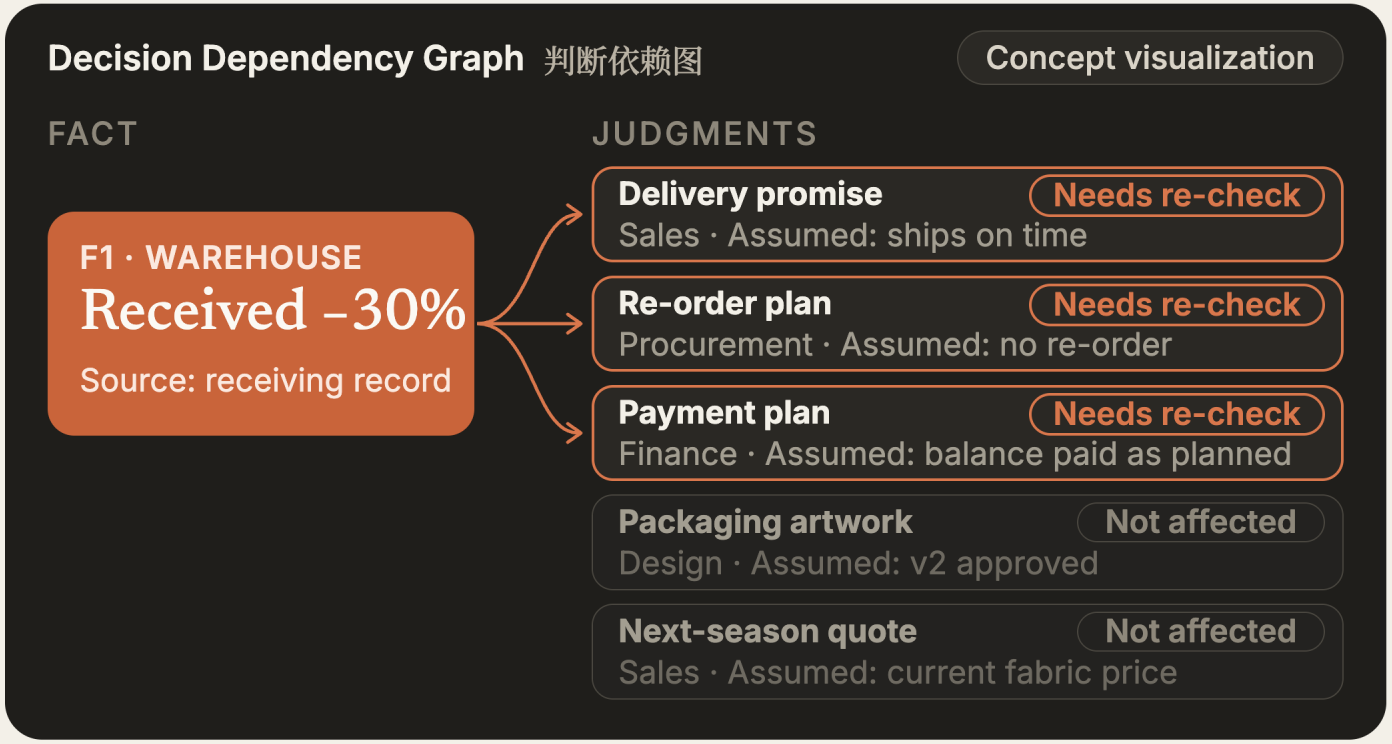

In a spreadsheet

Order A · sheet

	Item	Value
2	Received	~~100%~~ 70%
3	On-time delivery	Re-check
4	Re-order	30%
5	Balance payment	Hold
6	Packaging artwork	Approved

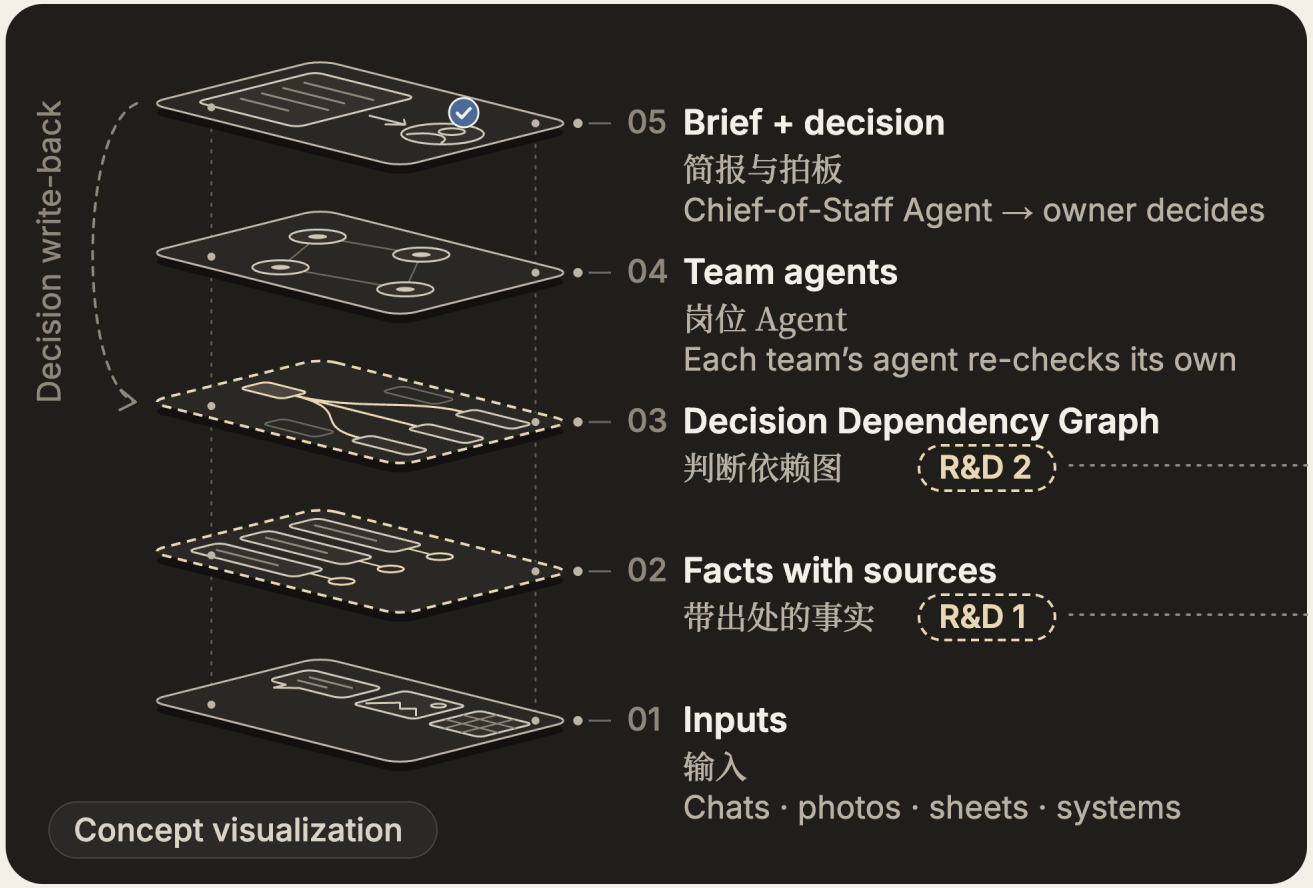

Change one cell → its dependents recalculate

With Findex

In this example: 3 judgments flagged for re-check, 2 left alone.

Five layers. Two hard R&D problems.

R&D 2

Find all affected, no false alarms

Why it's hard: Which judgment rests on which fact is rarely written down.

Our approach: Each judgment records what it assumes; a change re-checks only those.

R&D 1

Messy inputs → sourced facts

Why it's hard: One change, scattered across photos, chats and sheets.

Our approach: Pull out one fact that keeps its source and who confirmed it.

How we test it: p.10 · Six-month plan: p.14
